

exam__part1

Marian Pitel

December 6, 2016

traditional power analysis for incremental prediction

I conclude from the result of a traditional power analysis for incremental prediction that a sample size of at least $N = 74$ is needed to ensure that my analysis has a power of .85 for detecting an increment in variance, such that agreeableness will uniquely predict 10% of the variance in performance scores when in a regression with conscientiousness.